Sunday Sermons

6/9, TODAY, 11:00am – “The Rights of Women”

Rev. Dr. Stephen Butler Murray, Minister

In a time in which more women hold political office in the United States than ever before, we concurrently live in a time in which women's rights and liberty are more in jeopardy than they have been in the past fifty years. Today, we will examine what is happening in American politics that has brought us to this tremulous time, and how we might engage our political system to avert this crisis

6/16 11:00am – “Where in the World is God?”

Rev. Diane Baker, Guest Speaker

In our world today, around every corner and on every news outlet, we are bombarded with reports about the worst that is going on in our communities, nations and environment. It's easy to get disheartened, despondent and even depressed. We could be convinced that we're on the slippery slope down into the abyss. However, we are reminded every day in many ways that God is in the mix, pulling us onto the path that brings health, healing and wholeness. We just need eyes to see.
